DETAILED ACTION

Claim Objections

1. Claims 1, 5, and 6 are objected to because of the following informalities:

It is not clear if the “interface member” is part of the claimed invention because it is not positively recited as an element of the claimed invention. Appropriate correction is required.

2. Claims 2, 4, 8, 10, 12-18, 23, 26, and 29-31 are objected to because of the following informalities:

The claimed subject matter is indefinite because the use of “and/or”. Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter, which the applicant regards as his invention.

3. Claims 16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

The claims recite the limitation “wherein said subject is an animate or inanimate object.” However, it is not clear how blood pressure and pulse rate can be derived from an inanimate object.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

4. Claims 1-32 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Goodman, US 6,616,613 B1 ("Goodman").

Claims 1-21: Goodman teaches a blood pressure and pulse rate system for deriving the blood pressure and pulse of a subject, said system (see Abstract) comprising: an interface member, e.g. handle ("input device") 20; a sensor module ("PPG sensor") 12 in communication with the interface member 20 and coupled to the subject, said sensor module 12 is a pressure determining device for detecting a pulse wave form and pulse rate ("PPG signal" or "pulse contour", see col. 11, l. 66, to col. 12, l. 34, and col. 15, l. 26, to col. 16, l. 42) ; a processor module ("processing device") 14 that analyzes the pulse wave form and pulse rate signal for deriving variants of blood pressure, such as systolic or diastolic pressure (see col. 5, ll. 16-37, and col. 29, l. 33, to col. 30, l. 16); an output module, such as a display 5, a printer 11, a communication network 18, or web server 16 (see fig. 15B); wherein the sensor module and processor module are in wireless communication (see col. 13, ll. 50-57) or hard wired communication 13 (see fig. 2); an archival storage module ("web server") 16;

Art Unit: 3735

Claims 22-32: Because the method and computer program product of claims 22-32 are not distinct from the subject matter of claims 1-4, 11-13, 15, and 16, Goodman teaches claims 22-32 for the same reasons as claims 1-4, 11-13, 15, and 16 discussed above.
